

Unity students work at polls, paint diversity mural

March 11, 2009

In other news, the Arrow-Soul Mural program at Unity High school recently completed a new mural for the school.

Two of the artists involved in the project described their work. Senior Eddie Zaragoza said that a group of students brainstormed ideas and three became painters. "The theme of "cultural equality" explains itself," he added. "Our basic idea was unity of all people; the dove represents peace."

Junior Augustine Barajas said the artists wanted variety.

"There's an African mask, Asian dragons, and a Mexican warrior at the end. In the center you have a medicine wheel and the African dancers," he said. "We also included different pyramids and the buildings in the middle represent the different 'hoods in Oakland."
